Harry Cureton Charitable Trust

Criteria the Trustees will apply when considering applications for grants

While this list is not exclusive or binding on the Trustees, they will apply the following criteria in deciding whether to award grants:

- The Trustees will only make grants for "Activities that the Charity will support" as listed in the General Information on Applying for a Grant
- Precedence will be given to
 - capital projects rather than help with running costs;
 - grants where matching funds are available;
 - activities that will benefit the widest number of people;
 - pump priming grants, e.g. initial support for a medical post if that will lead to funding the post being taken over by the NHS.
- 1. No grant will normally be made:
 - 1.1 where the activity could be paid for by central or local government or from another source;
 - 1.2 where as a result of the grant anyone will benefit financially or otherwise;
 - 1.3 for more than 50% of the cost of any project or activity.
- 2. Grants will normally only be made to organisations, including other charities, hospitals and doctor's practices but not individuals.
- 3. Grants may be either single grants or rolling grants, i.e. grants where the Charity will be committed to make payments over a number of years. While there is no limit to the size of grants the Trustees wish to spread their benefit as widely as possible and are likely to give precedence to applications for grants up to £20,000 in any year. The Trustees, however, do not wish to discourage applications for larger awards, where the applicant considers they can demonstrate a justifiable reason for a large grant.
- 4. Conditions may be attached to the awards of grants and in the case of larger grants the Trustees may require a formal agreement. In order to promote awareness of the Charity to enable it to bring knowledge of its work to its target audience and to acknowledge Harry Cureton's generosity, it will normally be a condition of a grant that there will be public acknowledgement of the grant incorporating the Charity's name.
